Welcome

to the fourth edition of La Risa de Bilbao / Bilboko barrea. The festival team thought the ideal theme for this truculent year of 2013 would be underground humour. A humour rooted in resistance that runs against the grain, always critical, rebellious, non-conformist, alternative... And just who is the living god of underground humour? Robert Crumb, of course. The great author of comics, one of the most influential international artists from the sixties to the present. He has agreed to receive the BBK La Risa de Bilbao Prize, which has created an enormous stir in the world of comics and far beyond. Robert Crumb in Bilbao is a grand event in itself.

I'm especially looking forward to the round table on the Madrid Scene and to Mariscal and Nazario talking about Barcelona's underground, way back then when I was burning up my wild and crazy youth in both places, writing scripts for El Víbora and was happy, undocumented and immortal.

See you there!

Health, good humor and underground resistance.

EXHIBITION

ROBERT CRUMB

La Cúpula / El Víbora Editions

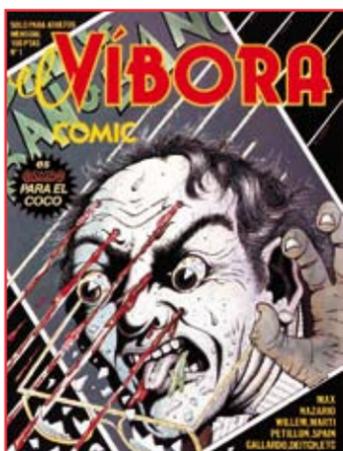

• "If we're talking about comics, this is one of the most important events in Bilbao. The biggest in quite a while. We're being paid a visit by Robert Crumb, a genius who uses a pencil to convey his priceless ideas and express his delusional thoughts. A master to be revered by connoisseurs the likes of Woody Allen, Andy Warhol and Lou Reed in their respective disciplines. Because Crumb is one of the most interesting voices of all time in alternative comics, an artist of character: obsessive, biting, one of the most influential – and controversial – artists in the history of comics. We stand before the king of underground comics, before one of the indisputable priests of a booming discipline – the comic strip – which takes up its place once again in La Risa de Bilbao.

Crumb's work will be at the event through a retrospective exhibition: nearly one hundred prints, which will be presented accompanied by a overview of La Cúpula's (Crumb's publisher in Spain) catalogue. We're to be paid a visit by an Artist with a capital 'A'. Robert Crumb will grace the city to confirm one of his famous quotes: 'I'm an outsider. I will always be an outsider.' And he will leave his mark. A large mark – of ink and satire.

- Influenced by May '68, psychedelia and punk, in the seventies Barcelona played host to a countercultural movement that foreshadowed the Madrid Scene and sought to break away through partying and the violation of the status quo. Many of those promoting the scene ended up becoming prominent artists, such as Javier Mariscal and Nazario Luque, two artists of international stature who will talk about those glorious and mad years.

Bolaño was a wild and subtle author, with an absolute commitment solely to his own literature. Two of Bolaño's closest collaborators will come together to discuss their absent friend in what will surely be a great tribute to one of the truly fundamental authors in the recent history of American literature.

FERNANDO TRUEBA'S TOP TEN HUMOUR SEQUENCES

Presented by Juan Bas

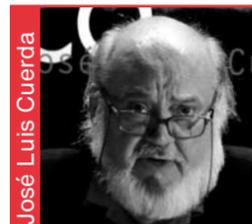

- Film history is full of sequences that – no matter how often we see them – make us laugh. Think of the Marx Brothers' stateroom, of Peter Sellers bungling about in The Party, of the meeting of the People's Front of Judea in Life of Brian. These are the pinnacle of comedy; just remembering them is enough to make us smile. In this event, Fernando Trueba will project and discuss his ten favorite humorous scenes.

AMANECE QUE NO ES POCO SCREENING+BOOK PRESENTATION

Book signing after the event

José Luis Cuerda, Julián Lacalle. Presented by: Pablo Martínez Zarracina

- Twenty-five years later, the charm of Amanece que no es poco remains unchanged. Fans of this film make up a kind of massive cult, laughing until their sides split and prone to delusional dialogues. Among them is the Pepitas de Calabaza publishing house, which even took its name from a scene in the film.

Calabaza, se acaba un nuevo día y, como todas las tardes, quiero despedirme de ti. Quiero despedirme y darte las gracias por seguir aquí con nosotros. Tú que podías estar en la mesa de los ricos y los poderosos, has elegido el humilde bancal de un pobre viejo para dar ejemplo al mundo. Yo no puedo olvidar que en los momentos más difíciles de mi vida —cuando mi hermana se quedó preñada del negro, o cuando me caparon el hurón a mala leche—, solo tú prestabas oídos a mis quejas e iluminabas mi camino. Calabaza, yo te llevo en el corazón.

Now, Pepitas de Calabaza has gathered into one volume 'for the use and enjoyment of both the faithful and neophytes' the original film script along with a wealth of unreleased material and some really juicy anecdotes presented by José Luis Cuerda. The director will be joining us along with Pepitas de Calabaza's publisher Julián Lacalle and Pablo Martínez Zarracina, who will act as master of ceremonies for this event. After the screening of Amanece que no es poco they will introduce us the book and talk about the long and happy life of one of the most celebrated comedies in Spanish cinema. This will be followed by José Luis Cuerda book signing, which will close La Risa de Bilbao.
